Bio

Lauren combines a liberal arts background and an aggressive disposition to obtain real-world results for commercial litigants and other authors, creators and technologists. No matter the forum — and she has appeared in federal, superior, probate, and land court in the past year — or subject matter, Lauren evinces a commitment to quality writing and her client's enterprise.

Lauren previously performed legal work for ACLU-TN and Volunteer Lawyers for the Arts, served as an articles editor on the Vanderbilt Journal of Entertainment and Technology Law, and acted as a research assistant to J.B. Ruhl.
